THE GODDESS OF THE BEAUTIFUL

The Goddess of the Beautiful, desiring to resign her throne and scepter, calls together the Spirits of the Beautiful and tells them of her determination. She bids each present her claim, that the most worthy may be chosen as her successor. When all have been heard and none found fitting, a little child presents herself, and to her the Goddess resigns her scepter and her throne.

THE NEW CHAPEL

THE SACRED HEART

O thorn-crowned Heart, within whose wondrous depths,
Are depths of love unfathomed and unknown;
A spear-oped Heart, that gave to man a path
Unto the foot of Mercy's great White Throne.
Another year—success, labors, joys,
We place in love before Thee, it is meet;
For all we have is Thine, and Thine is ours,
Oh! bless us kneeling at Thy Sacred feet!
Bless them who guide us every trial through,
And let us in Thy love e'er have a part;
And when life's school is ended, may we find
A home forever in Thy Sacred Heart!

THE HEART
